Dear Members of the Board,

Our young family is expanding and highly active in our community as my husband is a surgeon at Burnaby and the Royal Columbian Hospitals and I am the main caregiver of our active children and the Parent Association President at my son's school. We are currently applying for a variance to build an extension on the second floor of our home. We are requesting this exception because we are expecting another child mid-August and are renovating in order to build a nursery for our new baby. Currently, we have three bedrooms upstairs, which are all occupied by ourselves, our 7 year-old son and 3 year-old daughter. With (soon to be) three young children, we see the importance of having our entire family sleeping on one floor so that we can easily provide support and comfort throughout the night. We have an extensive backyard separating our home from our back alley way and the proposed extension is highly respectful of our neighbours as it does not interfere with their views or property line. Thank-you very much for considering our request, please let us know if we can provide letters of support from our neighbours or additional information.

Best regards,
