3. PRESENTATION

A) Environmental Awards and Environmental Stars Presenters: His Worship, Mayor Derek R. Corrigan & Councillor Dan Johnston, Chair, Financial Management Committee

Environmental Awards Recipients:
Burnaby Board of Trade, Kimberley Wong, British Columbia Institute of Technology's Factor Four Initiative, Sonya Kung

Environmental Stars Recipients:
Reid's Automotive, Simon Fraser University, Randy and Wendy Snyder, Mireta Strandberg-Salmon, Deer Lake Student Streamkeepers

His Worship, Mayor Derek R. Corrigan introduced Burnaby Environment Week, May 27th to June 11th, 2017. Following is the text of the Mayor's remarks:

Since 1996, the Environmental Awards Program has recognized deserving individuals, groups, institutions and businesses making significant contributions to the City of Burnaby in the areas of environmental stewardship and sustainability.

Before we begin, the City would like to acknowledge Covanta Energy, our corporate sponsor for Environment Week and the Awards Reception. Covanta's representatives were unable to attend the reception this evening and send their regrets, but nonetheless, we thank you for your support.

The Environmental Awards Program receives nominations in six categories: Business Stewardship, Communications, Community Stewardship, Green Choices, Planning and Development, and Youth.

There are also two levels of recognition. Environmental Awards typically recognize outstanding environmental achievements of a significant scope over a number of years.

Environmental Stars typically recognize significant environmental achievements of a smaller scale.

Without further delay, this year there are 5 Environmental Star recipients and 4 Environmental Award recipients. We will begin with the Environmental Stars.

The first Environmental Star, in the category of Business Stewardship, is presented to Reid's Automotive Recycling for their outstanding achievements to reduce the environmental footprint of their business operations.

In 2014, Reid's Automotive Recycling began working with a private sector consultant to measure their greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and develop strategies to reduce their environmental footprint. They have since made capital investments in their building to make it more energy efficient, resulting in less natural gas consumption. They also expanded their recycling programs and have promoted alternative commuting options for their employees. These investments and programs have significantly reduced their annual GHG emissions.

I ask the owners of Reid's Automotive Recycling, Stuart Reid and Teresa Reid, to come forward and accept their Environmental Star.

The second Environmental Star, in the category of Communications, is presented to Simon Fraser University for outstanding community engagement as part of SFU's 20 Year Sustainability Vision and Goals Planning Process.

For their 50th anniversary, SFU's Sustainability Office launched a comprehensive community engagement process to map out and envision what a 'sustainable SFU' would look like in twenty years. The result was the participation of over 4,000 SFU community members to create a 20 year sustainability vision and goals for the institution. The engagement process included an online reporting initiative to track SFU's sustainability achievements, community surveys and open houses, and support for individuals to host small group discussions around environmental sustainability.

I ask Erica Lay, Associate Director of Simon Fraser University's Sustainability Office, to come forward and accept the Environmental Star.

The third Environmental Star, in the category of Community Stewardship, is presented to Randy and Wendy Snyder for their outstanding contributions to our community as long standing members of the Stoney Creek Environment Committee.

Randy and Wendy Snyder have been active with the Stoney Creek Environment Committee, a local environmental stewardship group, for over 10 years. Wendy organizes and leads many invasive plant pulls and restoration planting activities in the watershed. She also leads a monthly bird walk and authors a blog about SCEC activities. In addition to participating in stewardship activities, Randy also helped the Stoney Creek Environment Committee rebrand their promotional and outreach materials with a new logo and graphics. Their joint volunteer efforts have benefitted the community of Burnaby and have contributed to the stewardship of Stoney Creek.

I ask Randy and Wendy Snyder to come forward and accept their Environmental Star.

The fourth Environmental Star, in the category of Youth, is presented to Mireta Strandberg-Salmon for her outstanding efforts to eliminate bottled water consumption at Moscrop Secondary School.

In the spring of 2016, Mireta began a project with a goal to eliminate the sale of bottled water at her school in order to reduce waste and greenhouse gas emissions that result from the production, distribution and disposal of plastic water bottles. Mireta undertook many different initiatives to educate and raise awareness among her fellow students, teachers and school district staff. Mireta's efforts have resulted in bottled water being removed from the vending machines in the school. An initiative is now underway to have a new water container filling station and fountain installed in the building.

I ask Mireta Strandberg-Salmon to come forward and accept her Environmental Star.

The fifth and last Environmental Star, in the category of Youth, is presented to the Deer Lake Student Streamkeepers for their stewardship of Deer Lake Watershed.

The Deer Lake Student Streamkeepers are a group of students from Burnaby Central Secondary School. In 2015, the group formed a school club to study the ecology of Deer Lake Brook and its tributaries. After some initial success, the students reached out to the City of Burnaby's Streamkeepers Program for guidance. Since then, the students have received training from the Pacific Streamkeepers Federation and have undertaken regular field visits to measure the water quality of Deer Lake Brook. These students have exhibited leadership and enthusiasm toward stewardship of this ecologically significant waterway.

I ask Sarah Hsu and Carlo Sequiban, Grade 11 students at Burnaby Central Secondary School, to come forward and accept the Environmental Star.

The first Environmental Award, in the category of Business Stewardship, is presented to the Burnaby Board of Trade for their outstanding and ongoing efforts to help Burnaby businesses be more environmentally sustainable.

The Board of Trade's flagship environmental program is the Pledge for a Sustainable Community, which is an online resource that helps businesses reduce their environmental footprint. The pledge program has received recognition locally and abroad. New programs from the Board of Trade include partnering with a local financial institution to create a community grant program that supports sustainability programming and business resources for its members. The Board has also partnered with a locally based social enterprise to make their GHG reduction certification program more accessible to Board members. As a result of the Board of Trade's efforts, a growing number of Burnaby based businesses have become certified and have reduced their environmental footprint.

I ask Paul Holden, President and CEO, and Tessa Vanderkop, Marketing, Programs and Sustainability Manager, on behalf of the Burnaby Board of Trade, to come forward and accept their Environmental Award.

The second Environmental Award, in the category of Green Choices, is presented to Kimberley Wong, for her outstanding efforts in her community to create a shared garden space for growing food at Kensington Gardens Apartment complex.

Kimberley Wong is a resident and President of the Strata Council at Kensington Gardens, an apartment complex in North Burnaby. Under Ms. Wong's leadership, the residents of this complex were able to convert an underused outdoor space into a community garden space. The garden gives the residents a choice to grow fresh food for their own use. Lawn clippings and leaves that would otherwise have to be hauled away as green waste are reused to amend the soil. The garden now consists of many garden boxes and has helped create more social interaction among the residents.

I ask Kimberley Wong to come forward and accept her Environmental Award.

The third Environmental Award, in the category of Planning and Development, is presented to the British Columbia Institute of Technology for outstanding contributions to environmental sustainability and the built environment as part of BCIT's Factor Four Initiative.

The Factor Four Initiative is led by the School of Construction and the Environment at BCIT. The initiative uses the buildings and services of an area on the campus as a living laboratory to explore whether a 75% reduction in materials and energy use can be achieved without comprising service levels. Since the initiative began in 2009, more than 20 successful projects have been completed in areas such as renewable energy, zero waste and ecological restoration, along with case studies, research papers and educational videos. Over that time, the initiative has engaged students, faculty and professionals across multiple disciplines.

I ask Rob Sawatzky, Breena Jackson and Kyle Karlstedt, instructors at BCIT to come forward and accept this Environmental Award on behalf of Jennie Moore, Associate Dean of Building Design and Construction Technology.

The fourth and final Environmental Award, in the category of Youth, is presented to Sonya Kung for outstanding leadership and environmental achievements in her school and community and with the Burnaby Youth Sustainability Network.

Sonya Kung is a student at École Alpha Secondary School and serves as the president of her school's Enviro Club and the Burnaby Youth Sustainability Network. In these roles, Ms. Kung helps lead a variety of environmental sustainability programs and initiatives for youth in Burnaby. She also founded an environmental workshop series, now hosted by elementary schools throughout the Burnaby School District that aims to inspire youth to create greener communities. As president of the Burnaby Youth Sustainability Network, Ms. Kung organized a summer clothing swap to reduce textile waste and helped organize the recently completed Do It Green youth conference.

I ask Sonya Kung to come forward and accept her Environmental Award.

This concludes the Environmental Awards and Stars presentation for 2017. Thank you again to all of this year's recipients for your contributions to our community and the environment.

As a reminder, Environment Week events and activities are scheduled until June 11. Please visit our webpage at www.burnaby.ca/environmentweek to learn more about upcoming events and activities. And please visit www.burnaby.ca/ess to learn more about the 'My Green Pledge' Program."
