Comment	Hello, My daughter goes to Cariboo Hill Daycare on Cariboo road. We are deeply grieved and also enraged about the accident that occurred at the crosswalk yesterday taking the life of an innocent 15 year old girl. It was 7195 Cariboo Rd Burnaby The crosswalk has been a dangerous spot ever since it was made. There have been a couple of daycare Moms that wrote to the city to have signal installed at the crosswalk since it is at the bottom of a bridge and hill ,where cars are always coming at a speed. They were just told that it was not dangerous and there wasn't too much traffic to install a light. Well, its 'One life too many'. Does someone have to die for the city to take any action!!! The people making these crosswalks are experts in their field and if a layman can understand the danger , why can't the officials. And we need to make a case to prove this to them. That is simply not done. Also, the temporary solution is 2 small red lights at the bottom of the crosswalk which cannot be seen until you actually get there. Is the city waiting for another mortality to take some preventive measures??? I would really appreciate a response and understand what immediate actions are being taken . Sincerely, Namita
