If a highrise building would be built at the proposed location it would negatively impact the amount of light my unit will receive (given the proximity to the new development and the that the building I am living in is a lowrise building). Furthermore, it would stand out negatively to the overall development look and feel as the whole block is a lowrise and townhome complex. And last but not least the increase in potential residence and therefore car traffic will make Rumble Street even more congested and put pedestrians and bikers (that frequent the area because of the BC Parkway) in additional danger because of that. I hope this feedback will receive due consideration. I am opposed to a highrise development. However open to having it rezoned for lowrise development to keep with the overall character of the neighborhood and not negatively impact my enjoyment of my own apartment.

I live directly next door to this site and I support the proposed rezoning. Edmonds is a neighborhood with a great mix of residential densities and this project will add new housing which we need. Thanks to staff for their hard work negotiating the road dedication.
