Since 2020, Youth Climate Corps BC (YCCBC) has been addressing the urgent need for meaningful youth engagement in the workforce, particularly in climate-resilient careers. YCCBC has completed 10,000 working days of community climate action and training, hiring around 100 youth for 4-6 months, paying them a living wage, and conducting projects that enhance local resilience and contribute to global mitigation efforts. We are requesting to appear before Council to explore opportunities to collaborate with Burnaby staff to develop programming that aligns with the city's climate goals and supports meaningful, youth-driven climate action in the community.
